John Drew will appear this afternoon and evening; at the afternoon performance he will present "The Masked Ball," and in the evening "The Butterflies." In this play Mr. Drew in the role of the penniless gentleman, Frederick Ossian, who rescues a pretty girl from drowning and falls desperately in love with her, has a part that fits him admirably. He is gay and airy all through It, but he also makes love in a most delicious way, and this seemed to be the portion of his work over which the fair sex, which thronged Palmer's, seems to most enthuse. When Mr. Drew began his starring season last season, after leaving Daly's theater, where he had been leading man for twelve years, he was given a grand greeting. This year he has had a series of ovations. Such crowds Palmer's theater never held before. "The But-terflies" will be presented with the original New York scenery and cast, which includes besides Miss Maude Adams, Anna Belmont, Virginia Buchanan, Harry Harwood, Lewis Baker, Arthur Byron, Leslie Allen, Frank Lamb and others. Sale of seats now open.

E. H. Sothern, in his new comedy, "Capt. Lettarbiair," will be here to-morrow evening. "Capt. Lettarbiair" has been a great success at the Lyceum theater, New York, where continued crowded houses led Manager Daniel Frohman to resort to giving three matinees a week to try to accommodate who went away at night unable

On Easter Monday evening, the 15th inst., Jewett, the magician, will make his first appearance in New Haven under the auspices of Admiral Foote post, No. 17, G. A. R., An exchange says of Jewett: "His performance is a succession of surprises, each succeeding one being more bewildering than its predecessor. He does not stoop to any f the old tricks that have for years een the stock in trade of the peripaetic magician, but entertains and amus s you with phenomena which baffle the most skillful and scientific to explain. As a matter of fact his least elaborate tricks are the most difficult to explain. for the reason that they cannot be attributed to outside agencies, but must e accredited to the marvelous dexterity of the conjurer."

Poll's Wonderland Theater. Crowds will no doubt be at the Wonderland to see M'lle Charcot, whose success in hypnotizing subjects presented here exceeds her record, which is three out of ten. Once under control M'lle Charcot has been able to make them do anything she commanded, and makes lot of fun for the audience. Joe Flynn and the other comedy stars furnish an entertainment also which is certain to make a holiday visit to the Wonderland attractive.
